Impact of COVID 19 on Students:

Understanding Your Student's Mental Health Needs and Working with Your School District to Obtain Needed Services

May is Mental Health Awareness Month. During the COVID-19 crisis, the anxiety and isolation have impacted all—particularly our young people with learning or potential emotional disabilities, as well as their parents and caregivers. The COVID-19 pandemic seems likely to worsen existing mental health conditions and to lead to more conditions among children and adolescents because of the unprecedented combination of social isolation and the stress of the public health crisis. We will discuss how parents can work with school districts to develop a partnership on needed mental health services. We all need to work together to end stigma and ensure appropriate services for our young people.
